During 1992 and 1993, ISER conducted a comprehensive quarterly survey of retail fuel prices throughout Alaska. The prices include sales taxes, reflecting what the consumer actually pays. These data are summarized in the tables that follow.

There was no survey conducted in the first quarter of 1993, and only a minimal spot check of prices in the third quarter of 1993.

Explanation of Tables:

- Part 1 Statewide Summary. This page shows the simple average of prices collected within each census area and borough of Alaska. It also shows weighted average prices for larger regions and the entire state, with the weights reflecting the estimated number of fuel users in each census area/borough. For example, while Anchorage has half the state population, it has very few people who heat with oil. Therefore it would be inappropriate to calculate the "average" cost of fuel oil by assigning half the weight to the Anchorage fuel oil price. All prices include sales tax to reflect what the customer actually pays.
- Part 2 Statewide Summary, expressed in $/million Btu Delivered Heat. This table repeats the numbers from Part 1, but takes account of the heat content of the fuel and the typical combustion efficiency to show what the consumer pays to get 1 million Btu of heat to the interior of his or her house.
- Part 3 Summary of Raw Survey Data, sorted by community. This table shows the actual price data collected from each vendor surveyed. The vendor names are not shown to preserve confidentiality. All prices include sales taxes to reflect what the consumer actually pays.
- Part 4 Summary Statistics. These show how many vendors were surveyed for each product and the minimum, maximum, and simple average prices obtained.
