RURAL SCHOOL TV PROJECT UNDERWAY

Television is going into remote Alaska villages but it's not the usual kind of television.

An experimental program to help rural elementary school teachers evaluate teaching techniques by viewing themselves on television is being aided by the university's Alaska Rural School Project.

William R. Filter, audio-visual coordinator for the project, will undertake the second of three trips to remote villages November 24.

Filter and Dr. Paul Jenson of the Corvallis, Ore. public school system, will visit Ekwok, New Stuyahok and Kolignik on the Nushagak River near Dillingham in Southwestern Alaska.

The trip will last 10 days. The two educators will videotape five teachers working in actual class sessions with village children.

A previous trip to the same villages produced nine tapes taken in class. After that filming, the teachers were able to watch themselves on the television screen, "seeing themselves as others see them in class," Filter said. The teachers then were able to evaluate strong points in technique and areas needing improvement.

Consecutive tapings and viewings over a period of months will enable teachers to see what progress they are making in improving technique, Filter pointed out.

Films taken during the trips will be stored in village files developed by the Rural School Project under the direction of Mrs. Winifred Lande, acting director.

The tapes can then be used in later instruction of new teachers getting acquainted with Alaska and rural conditions in the state.

DEPARTMENT DOCUMENTS NEEDED FOR LIBRARY

Copies of bulletins, newsletters and other media circulated by university departments and research institutes are needed for permanent preservation in the library, according to H. Theodore Ryberg, library director.

At least two copies should be sent to the library - one for permanent storage in the archives, another for general circulation on the library floor.

"We would like for everyone on campus to be so aware of our need for copies of publications produced that they will automatically send us copies of everything they produce," Ryberg said.

"Also, many of the university publications should automatically go to each of our community college libraries."

UA ECONOMIST TO WRITE ENCYCLOPEDIA ARTICLE

Dr. George W. Rogers, research professor of economics in the university's Institute of Social, Economic and Government Research, will write a special article on Alaska for the 1968 Collier's Encyclopedia.

Dr. Rogers, stationed in Juneau, has served as chairman of the U.S. Department of the Interior's Alaska Field Committee and as economic advisor to the Governor.

He is author of "The Future of Alaska" and "Alaska Transition."

AURORA CONTRACT AWARDED TO GEOPHYSICAL INSTITUTE

The Geophysical Institute has been awarded a contract to continue the institute's participation in a program studying artificial auroras created from high altitude rockets.

The contract for $103,055 was awarded by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. It brings to a total of $338,231 funding for the artificial aurora study, one of many aurora research programs being conducted by the institute, according to Keith Mather, director.

A Geophysical Institute team, under the direction of Dr. T. Neil Davis assistant director, will build and operate several image orthicon television systems that are the primary instruments used in detecting the artificial auroras.

NEWCOMER'S GROUP TO HEAR MRS. WOOD

Mrs. William R. Wood will speak at a meeting of the Newcomer's Group of the University Women's Association at 8 p.m. November 15 in the Commons Upper Lounge.

She will speak on some of the changes that have taken place at the UA since her husband became the university's fourth president in 1960.

After the talk Mrs. Ed Dolney will show slides and movies of Josephine the moose and her new offspring, Happy.

The two friendly moose come to the Dolney homestead every winter and stay until spring.

DR. MORROW NAMED FELLOW IN NATIONAL INSTITUTE

Dr. James E. Morrow, professor of fisheries biology and head of the Department of Biological Sciences, has been accepted as a fellow in the American Institute of Fishery Research Biologists.

The scientific society of research biologists, formed at the University of Washington in 1956, accepts members of high professional standing in the fishery research field.

The organization was formed to advance the theory, practice and application of fishery research biology and to promote conservation and proper use of fishery resources.

Dr. Morrow came to the university in 1960 from Yale University where he worked in Yale's Bingham Oceanographic Laboratory.

BASKETBALL SPECTATOR CLINIC SCHEDULED

A spectator clinic to demonstrate basketball techniques and to introduce members of the university and Lathrop High School varsity teams to the public will be held from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Friday in the Patty Gymnasium.

The two teams are sponsoring the clinic, according to UA coach Al Svenningson and Lathrop coach Bill Ernst. The clinic will be open free to the public.

"The clinic is designed to demonstrate fundamental techniques and drills in basketball," Svenningson said, "to increase the knowledge of the average fan.

"The purpose is to create an interest and understanding of the game."

Players on the two teams will demonstrate warm-up exercises, the fast-break, agility, conditioning and screening drills, offense patterns and will engage in intra-squad scrimmage.

EVERETTE POEM PUBLISHED IN BRITISH QUARTERLY

The poem, "The Song of the Mill" by Oliver Everette, assistant professor of English at the university and Alaska's former poet laureate, appears in the current issue of "Trace", a quarterly poetry journal published in England.

VARSITY SWIMMING AND DIVING TEAM TO BEGIN SESSION

An organization meeting for men and women wishing to join the university's varsity swimming and diving team will be held in room 120 of the Patty Building at 5 p.m. Monday, November 13.

Student status is not required for team eligibility, coach Earl Detrick explained.

Competition this year will be restricted to meets in Alaska. Three meets are scheduled: a general Alaska team meet, January 27 in the Patty Building; open and age group meet, March 16 at Fort Richardson and the State of Alaska Amateur Athletic Union Championships at Elmendorf Air Force Base.

Christy Rowinski will coach the women's team this year, Detrick said. Volunteer timers, starters, judges and other officials are needed. Persons interested in these jobs should call Detrick in the Physical Education Department.

KINDNESS WITH STYLE

The message, written plainly on a sheet of notebook paper and stuffed carefully under the windshield wiper, said simply:

"You left your parking lights on. I hope you wanted them off."

It was unsigned. The car lights, indeed, were off.

The note and the deed reminded Dr. William R. Wood, owner of the car, of an essay by Gelett Burgess, "The Educated Heart". It says, in part:

"The educated heart, remember, does kindness with style."

And this was kindness, the university's president said, with a bit of style.

SKELLINGS NAMED AS TEXTBOOK, LITERARY CONSULTANT

Dr. Edmund Skellings of the English Department has been asked by Prentice-Hall, book publishers, to be a textbook consultant.

Skellings' first manuscript critique will involve one of the most widely-adopted fiction textbooks in the country, "Short Fiction" by Frakes and Trashen.

Skellings also was recently asked by the American Dialect Society at the University of Wisconsin to select works that represent the literary idiom of Alaska.

The selections that reflect Alaskan speech and speech patterns will be included in the new "Dictionary of American Regional English", which is being prepared by the society for publication.

MCCARTHY PRESENTS PAPER AT ARCHIVISTS' CONFERENCE

Paul McCarthy, University Archivist and Curator of Manuscripts, presented a paper, "Alaska: The State Archives and Records Management Situation" at a meeting of the Society of American Archivists at Santa Fe, N.M.

The meeting examined progress in several states reported as deficient in archival work by Dr. Ernst Posner in his book, "American State Archives".

The conference was chaired by Marguerite B. Cooley, director of Library and Archives for the State of Arizona.

LINE FORMS EARLY FOR HEADBOLT HEATER APPLICATIONS

More than 45 persons were in line outside the Comptroller's Office at 8 a.m. this morning, ready to make application for a limited number of campus headbolt heater outlets for faculty and staff. The line started forming at 7:20.

Today marked the first day the applications were being accepted.

The Administrative Council has authorized an increase in the monthly rental from $3 to $5. Ten cents per kilowatt hour will be charged for electricity used. Applications must be accompanied by a refundable deposit of $15 plus $5 for the first month's use.

An announcement from the Comptroller's Office explained that the rental was increased to help limit applications to those persons who needed a headbolt heater and WOULD use one. In past years, the announcement said, many spaces went unoccupied when those persons who had rented them didn't use the heater outlets.

Applications for faculty and staff will be accepted only from those persons living off campus. The assignments will be made on a first-come, first-served basis.

U OF A VETS DONATE VIETNAM BLOOD

Veterans on the UA campus are observing Veteran's Day, November 11, with a trip to Bassett Army Hospital at Fort Wainwright to donate blood marked specifically for Vietnam.

A formal retreat ceremony was scheduled to be held at 4:30 this afternoon (Thursday) with a salute fired with a 40 mm cannon.
